Delivering on a Promise

This year marks an important milestone in the history of the Ford Foundation. We celebrate 70 years of delivering on a promise to improve lives and create opportunity. It is also a year in which we will see a change in our leadership as Susan Berresford prepares to retire after 38 years of service to the foundation including 12 distinguished years as president. Over the course of her career at Ford, Susan has come to embody the foundation's values and mission. As president she has built an organization of dedicated professionals who support pioneering work by innovative grantees around the world. The impact of Susan's leadership extends beyond Ford and our grantees to the many contributions she has made to building the field and practice of philanthropy.

Over decades the Ford Foundation and its grantees have taken on enduring problems that require sustained effort and resolve—challenges such as poverty reduction, protection of human rights, peace building and governance reform, expansion of educational opportunity and artistic creativity. Continuity of purpose in these areas is the hallmark of Ford's work, and we invite you to trace this journey, vividly illustrated in the enclosed timeline.

I want to express my gratitude to Ratan Tata, chairman of Tata Industries Limited, who this past year completed his term as a member of the Board of Trustees after 12 years of service. Ratan brought to the foundation a deep understanding of international business, invaluable insights on responding to crises around the world and steadfast commitment to the power of philanthropy to improve lives. I am thankful for his wise counsel and tireless devotion to the work of our grantees.

I am pleased to report that the board also elected Thurgood Marshall Jr., a partner at Bingham McCutchen LLP and principal at Bingham Consulting Group, to serve as trustee. Thurgood's deep range of experience in government and the private sector is enhancing our work and will continue to do so in the years ahead.

While particular funding strategies and grant makers may change over time, the values that guide the foundation endure and will continue to guide our work moving forward. The Board of Trustees has consistently reaffirmed that we must manage the foundation with this long-term perspective, to be here to help the courageous people and institutions who strive for lasting and positive change.

Kathryn S. Fuller

While strategies change over time, the values that guide the foundation endure.

Advancing Human Welfare

In my last year as president, and after nearly 40 years of work at the Ford Foundation, I take pride and pleasure in recalling the ways Ford has supported reformers and visionaries advancing human welfare. In these years, some of our best work with our grantees has been in four areas: supporting emerging leaders; working with social justice movements and networks; creating new organizations; and expanding opportunities through innovations that improve lives. In this essay, I want to offer a few examples of our work in 2006 and how they extend this history of Ford grant making.

Individuals drive innovation.
But too often, talented individuals from marginalized groups are prevented from contributing to progress.

Individuals drive innovation. But too often, talented individuals from marginalized groups are prevented from contributing to progress. For decades, Ford has responded to this problem by funding advanced training and other support for men and women from marginalized communities who want to be leaders and decision makers. In the 1960's, under the leadership of McGeorge Bundy, the foundation created a fellowship program to help diversify the racial and ethnic composition of the professoriate in American colleges and universities. We have sustained and expanded this program over 40 years, while also funding many other fellowship programs for new thought leaders inside and outside the United States in fields as varied as journalism, the arts, human sexuality research, economics and foreign affairs.

In 2001, we made the largest grant in Ford's history, $280 million, to establish a graduate fellowship program for emerging leaders from marginalized communities outside the United States.

In 2006, we committed an additional $75 million to extend the program to 2014 and support a total of approximately 4,300 talented men and women. The fellows represent many historically disadvantaged groups, including racial, ethnic and religious minorities and people living with disabilities. Roughly half of the fellows are women; more than two-thirds come from outside major cities; and over 90 percent are the first from their communities to have advanced degrees. The program—based at the Institute of International Education—has disproved skeptics who felt that students from disadvantaged groups would be ill-prepared for highly competitive universities around the world and that brain drain and flawed selection processes would be a problem. As of this date, over 2,500 fellows have been selected. More than 1,000 have completed their study and less than 1 percent have left the program for academic reasons. Of those who have completed their degrees and are not pursuing further study, most are now back in their home countries making a difference.

Most achieve truly significant change when they inspire and mobilize like-minded people.

While the originality and personal commitment of individual leaders is what drives innovation, most achieve truly significant change when they inspire and mobilize like-minded people. For this reason, Ford also works with social movements and social justice networks. This second signature of Ford grant making has included support for the U.S. civil rights movement, the anti-apartheid struggle, the women's and international human rights movements and others. We provide funds for research to identify patterns of injustice, legal advocacy and scholarship and cultural and artistic expression that helps people communicate their shared vision and values. Very often, at the start of social justice movements, issues raised by their leaders are controversial, but ultimately they are accepted and seen as consistent with evolving standards of decency and respect for the value of each individual human being. This past year, we continued our long history of support for such efforts and also continued funding for organizations focused on migrants, gay and lesbian rights, people living with AIDS, and citizens seeking governmental accountability around the globe.

When Ford takes a major role in establishing a new organization, we often help sustain it for 10 or more years through planning and launch, refinement of governance and operational systems and later, the creation of a diverse funding base. Sometimes, after a considerable period of support, the foundation helps with an endowment. This long-term partnership is evident in the history of such organizations as Manpower Demonstration Research Corporation, the Police Foundation and Local Initiatives Support Corporation in the United States. The worldwide Innovations Awards programs and the International Center for Transitional Justice exemplify such long-term partnerships between Ford and new institutions working largely beyond U.S. borders.

In 2006, following these principles, Ford helped set up and capitalize a number of new foundations around the globe such as TrustAfrica and the Brazil Human Rights Fund. Ford also made grants to two new organizations we recently helped create to address the problems of individual American artists: United States Artists, which awards $50,000 to 50 artists each year, and LINC, which addresses the working-poor concerns of individual artists such as health insurance and affordable space in which to live and work.

We support new ideas and programs that advance knowledge and improve lives.

Finally, we support innovators and their colleagues who generate new ideas and programs that advance knowledge and improve lives and opportunities. Ford funds the refinement and testing of new ideas, and if they produce positive results, these ideas and practices can move into the mainstream. In the past, fields as diverse as demography and minority and women’s studies exemplified this partnership between innovative thought leaders and Ford. In each case, innovators offered academic and policy researchers new tools to understand complex human behavior and formulate appropriate policies and teaching. Last year, continuing this focus on fresh intellectual inquiry, the foundation made grants to prompt 27 colleges and universities to develop academic programs that encourage new scholarship and engage students and faculty in constructive dialogue on subjects that have been a source of conflict and hostility on campus. These “difficult dialogues” can also serve as models of respectful discussion of sensitive public issues.

We also appreciate the value of support for fresh ideas in the world of practice. In the 1980’s, under the leadership of Franklin Thomas, the emergence of the new field of community development resulted in part from a partnership between Ford and neighborhood leaders engaged in restoration of blighted, low-income communities. From the 1970’s onward, the foundation supported reform designed to re-establish rule of law and participatory decision making in countries emerging from dictatorial or totalitarian regimes. Another example from that period is seen in Ford’s early support of microfinance pioneers—people like Nobel Laureate Muhammad Yunus or India’s Ella Bhatt or Vijay Mahajan. Ford funding helped these and other microfinance leaders try new poverty-reduction and social-mobilization strategies that affect policy and link with mainstream civic and financial institutions. In 2006, Ford continued to seek ways to make markets work for the poor through innovative experiments that expand homeownership, promote savings by seeding accounts established at a child's birth and reform of predatory lending and credit practices that harm low-income families.

These four areas of signature work—finding emerging leaders, supporting social justice movements, building new organizations and expanding opportunities through innovations that improve lives—reflect the diversity of approaches Ford brings to enduring challenges. But they also suggest one role for philanthropy that Ford has pursued for more than 50 years: To be a long-term and flexible partner with innovative leaders of thought and action.

Lasting change in difficult areas, such as poverty alleviation, protection of human rights or re-establishment of democratic governance after a dictatorship, requires decades of effort. It involves sustained work with successive generations of innovators as they pursue idealistic and ambitious goals. This is a choice our board has made, decade after decade. Other foundations have the freedom to make other choices that are equally valid when they pursue a short-term perspective. Our nation's philanthropic traditions and laws encourage philanthropic generosity in multiple forms that reflect the diversity and varied ambitions of our population. I see this as a great strength of our nation's philanthropic heritage and one of our soundest public policies.

As I leave Ford, I see philanthropy growing significantly. The numbers of foundations and donor organizations are expanding rapidly, including the presence of new “mega-donors” whose resources hold great promise. It is, therefore, a time for us all to engage in dialogue about our field’s evolution, what we can accomplish and how each of us can do the very best work with our resources. I feel sure that creative men and women will continue to bring fresh ideas to the Ford Foundation as they strive for peace, freedom, fairness, well-being and democratic governance. I am proud of what Ford’s grantees have accomplished during my turn leading the foundation, and I look forward to learning and inspiration from the next generation’s achievements.

Lasting change requires decades of trial and effort.

Susan V. Berresford

Finding Emerging Leaders

New generations of talented leaders often emerge from places we least expect. Finding these gifted individuals and opening doors for them as they pursue their passions is a central Ford Foundation purpose. We hope to broaden the search and deepen the pool from which leaders emerge.

In 2006, we recommitted to an ambitious and highly successful program that seeks out new leaders around the globe. The International Fellowships Program (IFP)—launched in 2001 with the largest grant in the foundation’s history—searches for talent in some of the most marginalized communities in the world. IFP is a program of the New York City-based International Fellowships Fund, which is an independently incorporated supporting organization of the Institute of International Education. Now more than 2,500 strong, IFP fellows are passionate advocates, scientists, scholars and activists whose potential to lead is limited only by their lack of access to advanced education. This success in finding emerging leaders from outside the mainstream is why a grant of $75 million this past year will extend the program to nearly 1,000 additional fellows by the year 2014.

We also collaborated with three other foundations in 2006 to launch, with a $20 million start-up fund, United States Artists, dedicated to supporting the extraordinary talent and creativity of individual artists across the United States. United States Artists has already announced its first 50 fellowships for gifted artistic leaders, each of whom receive $50,000.

A LEADER FOR WOMEN

Ning Huanxia, a 2002 IFP fellow, is now deputy director of the Shaanxi Women’s Federation in China and has become a leader in keeping girls in schools and helping abused women from poor rural areas. The organization has built a network of professionals and volunteers who advise survivors of domestic and sexual violence and broaden women’s awareness of their rights.

1953 THE FIRST SCHOLARSHIPS

Ford helps establish the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences and later makes a series of grants to scholars in the behavioral sciences. By 1956, 63 research grants are awarded, including grants to anthropologists Margaret Mead and Claude Lévi-Strauss.

1959–62 HUMAN IMAGINATION

A major program of fellowships in the creative arts includes painters Jacob Lawrence and Josef Albers; poets Robert Lowell and E. E. Cummings; writers James Baldwin, Saul Bellow and Flannery O'Connor; theater directors Alvin Epstein and Gene Frankel; and a young composer named Philip Glass.

1969 SCHOLARSHIPS FOR MINORITIES

Ford establishes a program of doctoral fellowships for African-American students and faculty, the start of a long commitment to scholarships for minorities. In the early 1970's, the foundation initiates a six-year, $100 million program to strengthen private, historically black colleges and universities and to provide graduate fellowships for minorities. Today, this work continues as the Ford Foundation Diversity Fellowships.

1993 INTERNATIONAL REACH

Building on the foundation's Foreign-Area Fellowships program from 1952 to 1974, funding goes to 20 colleges and universities around the world for interdisciplinary seminars for faculty and students from the social sciences and foreign area studies. The effort focuses on emerging talent in Asia, the Middle East, Africa, Russia and Eastern Europe and seeks to promote global exchange and cooperation by encouraging doctoral students in the social sciences to develop competence in international studies.

2000 COMMUNITY LEADERSHIP

The foundation, in partnership with the Advocacy Institute and the Robert F. Wagner Graduate School of Public Service at New York University, launches the Leadership for a Changing World program. This effort identifies and supports community leaders across the country committed to working on some of the most challenging social issues facing communities—youth development, affordable housing, human rights, environmental justice and living wages.

Supporting Social Movements and Networks

Throughout history, people have come together voluntarily to build networks and social movements that advance their common interests. Such citizen associations build social cohesion and strengthen the ability of societies to address enduring challenges—poverty, discrimination and conflict among them. Our work seeks to help people across the world connect to movements, build networks and mobilize around common goals.

In 2006, our support enabled LogoLink, an international network of groups, to promote citizen participation in local government and to refocus its network as it relocates in the global south. We also built upon decades of work supporting groups that have helped inform the debate on immigration reform and fostered the integration of immigrants into American life. And around the world in 2006, we continued to support a Global Dialogue on Sexual Health and Well-Being, an initiative that draws together researchers and practitioners and promotes informed public dialogue and positive policy change. Our conviction that understanding of others is essential in our diversifying and interconnected world also led to our Difficult Dialogues initiative in 2006, which is helping more than 40 campuses to initiate civil and constructive debate about divisive issues.

2006 INTEGRATING NEWCOMERS

Nashville, Tenn., reflects the growing diversity of communities across America. Ford grantees, such as the Tennessee Immigrant and Refugee Rights Coalition, are part of a national movement dedicated to supporting the successful integration of immigrants into social, political and economic life.

JUSTICE IN SOUTH AFRICA

In an effort to promote understanding between the United States and South Africa, grants support exchange programs in education, business and journalism. In the 1980's, under the leadership of former President Franklin Thomas, foundation grants help create a network of international and South African legal experts who challenge the legal basis for apartheid and are central participants in helping shape the new constitution. Dedicated to supporting education, the arts and community development, the foundation opens an office in Johannesburg in 1993 to help the people of the country build a peaceful and prosperous nonracial democracy.

FIGHTING DISCRIMINATION

To create a broad civil rights network, the foundation supports the founding of new civil rights groups over the next two years, including the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, the National Council of La Raza, the Native American Rights Fund, the Puerto Rican Legal Defense and Education Fund, the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing and the Legal Action Center. Ford also funds the Voter Education Project to support minority voters' rights and increase voter registration in the South. In 1992, Ford helps create the Asian American Justice Center.

1976

A MOVEMENT FOR WOMEN

Reflecting some 20 years of foundation support for global women's empowerment and health, Ford provides assistance to the National Organization for Women's Legal Defense and Education Fund to promote gender equality and prohibit gender-based discrimination. In addition, Ford supports the International Women's Health Coalition's efforts to ensure that women gain access to reproductive health care services worldwide.

A MOVEMENT IN LATIN AMERICA

Building on a long history of support in the region, the foundation forms partnerships with local grantees to support human rights in Chile, Argentina and Peru. This includes expanding funds for research centers, universities and bar associations; addressing human rights violations and building sound judicial procedures; and promoting positive relationships between government and civil society.

STRENGTHENING CULTURES

Ford helps launch the Honoring Nations program to help build a network of individuals and organizations committed to excellence in Native American self-governance. Administered by the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard, the national program demonstrates how good governance is built upon the unique culture of each tribe. More than 78 tribal government initiatives have received awards for improved approaches to education, health care, economic development and environmental protection.

SUPPORTING RIGHTS

The foundation begins its support of the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force through a grant for groundbreaking research on issues of social and economic discrimination affecting the gay and lesbian community. Dedicated to eliminating prejudice, violence and injustice against gay and lesbian people at the local and national levels, the foundation also supports the work of the Lambda Legal Defense and Education Foundation and the ACLU.

2000

NURTURING CIVIL SOCIETIES

Ford establishes a program on global civil society, focused on strengthening civic engagement to make global institutions more accountable and solve problems that transcend national borders.

Building New Organizations

Supporting people who create new kinds of organizations is a lasting tradition of the Ford Foundation.

In 2006, Ford launched TrustAfrica, a new philanthropy based in Africa and run by Africans. Incubated by the foundation over five years, TrustAfrica has already convened innovative African leaders who are addressing the violence, discrimination and economic isolation that impact many nations on the continent. TrustAfrica offers a forum and funding for collaborative, locally grown solutions that build on new democratic governance practices, growing civil society capacities and greater freedom. Also in 2006, the foundation supported the establishment of the Brazil Human Rights Fund, which makes grants to strengthen promising grassroots initiatives and training and exchange programs for Brazilian human rights activists.

A NEW AFRICAN FOUNDATION

Akwasi Aidoo (at right), executive director of TrustAfrica, a new African-led institution launched by Ford to build on the promise of political and economic reforms across Africa. Based in Dakar, Senegal, TrustAfrica works with African institutions to develop lasting solutions to the continent's most pressing challenges.

LINCOLN CENTER

The foundation commits $25 million to build and operate Lincoln Center. The landmark performing arts institution was one of the first in the United States to bring together venues for all of the major performing arts and is now home to 12 independent and autonomous resident companies. In 2006, the foundation commits $15 million to help kick off the first major renovation of Lincoln Center to make it more inviting and accessible to visitors, artists and students.

NEIGHBORHOOD SAFETY

Support goes to organizations that research, monitor and improve law enforcement and the administration of justice. Recipients include the Police Foundation, created in 1970 with a five-year, $30 million commitment, which funds efforts to improve police patrol, investigation and crime prevention, as well as the Vera Institute of Justice, independently established in 1961, which supports court reform and the prevention of juvenile crime.

EARLY MICROFINANCE

The foundation's Bangladesh office makes a grant to the University of Chittagong's Economics Department and Muhammad Yunus to help launch a project to show that landless people, primarily women, can use credit and repay loans. This microfinance demonstration evolves into the Grameen Bank, which by 2005 has outstanding loans of more than $300 million and cumulative disbursements of more than $4 billion. Yunus and the Grameen Bank are awarded the 2006 Nobel Peace Prize. Support is also given to the Bangladesh Rural Advancement Committee, which organizes village cooperatives and trains health, nutrition and family-planning workers.

COMMUNITY REVITALIZATION

Ford helps establish the Local Initiatives Support Corporation, a national organization dedicated to revitalizing low-income, distressed communities. Other urban and rural revitalization work involves the Enterprise Foundation and local development funds and banks that help develop leadership, business and housing in low-income areas.

1982

WELFARE AND WORK

The Manpower Demonstration Research Corporation, created by the Ford Foundation, and Public/Private Ventures, another Ford-funded organization, address the connections between welfare and work and the link between employment and youth development.

1985

ARTISTIC OPPORTUNITIES

The Sundance Institute for Film and Television is awarded a grant to establish a laboratory in which choreographers and filmmakers can create new dance work specifically for film and television.

2001

HEALING THE WOUNDS OF WAR

With major foundation support, the International Center for Transitional Justice is created to secure sustainable peace and justice in countries emerging from years of conflict.

Creating Opportunity and Improving Lives

Almost 40 years ago, the Ford Foundation helped develop a new philanthropic tool by pioneering the use of low-cost loans and loan guarantees for charitable purposes. Called program-related investments, they act as “risk capital” for innovative, income-generating ideas that need patient development and testing. The foundation now uses a full range of tools, from grants to recoverable grants and loan guarantees to loans and equity investments—all designed to support innovation, create opportunity and improve lives.

In 2006 we backed innovative financing tools to give low-income families renting space in manufactured home parks a stake in the land on which their manufactured homes sit. Our grantees are helping these communities create land trusts so they do not lose their homes when parks are sold. We continue to support a national policy experiment in helping low-income families build assets for the future through children’s saving accounts. Seeded at birth by nonprofits and government and built up over time by contributions from families themselves, these accounts can eventually help pay for college tuition or down payments on homes. And working with low-wage workers, the foundation helps employers expand access to government programs that provide workers with savings instruments, insurance and tax benefits—all of which encourage long-term financial security and stability.

2006 COMMUNITY FORESTRY

A Ford-supported initiative in Mexico enables rural communities to play a more direct role in managing forest lands in cooperation with forestry agencies. These efforts, supported by the foundation in the United States and around the world, create economic opportunities for low-income rural households.

RENEWING COMMUNITIES

A grant to New York's Bedford-Stuyvesant Restoration Corporation to revitalize the disadvantaged Brooklyn neighborhood signals the beginning of the foundation's work in a new kind of community initiative: Community Development Corporations (CDCs). Formed by residents, small business owners, congregations and other local stakeholders, CDCs produce affordable housing, job training and social services. As of 2006, an estimated 4,600 CDCs are operating in the United States.

RURAL DEVELOPMENT

The foundation supports innovative forestry initiatives that enlist rural communities and forestry agencies in projects to improve management of forest lands while creating economic opportunities for poor rural households. Over the years, this includes grants in India for joint forest management; China for efforts to protect biodiversity while improving livelihoods; and Indonesia, Mexico and Brazil to assist indigenous communities in obtaining land and forest rights.

TOWARD ECONOMIC SECURITY

The foundation initiates the American Dream Demonstration to determine whether Individual Development Accounts—matched savings accounts—can help low-income people save and achieve economic stability. Six years later, Ford initiates the Savings for Education, Entrepreneurship and Down Payment project in sites across the nation to assess whether children's savings accounts can help young people save for college, buy a first home, even build up a nest egg for retirement.

AFFORDABLE MORTGAGES

The foundation collaborates with the Center for Community Self-Help and Fannie Mae to develop the Self-Help Initiative, which makes available $2 billion in affordable mortgages for 35,000 minority and low-income home buyers nationwide. The $50 million grant marks one of the largest commitments to homeownership by a philanthropic institution.

2005

A REGION IN NEED

In partnership with the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, Ford commits $7 million to support a public/private initiative to spur economic development in formerly industrial stretches of Detroit's waterfront. Support for cultural institutions and community development in struggling neighborhoods is designed to help Detroit revitalize its economy.

How We Work

THE GRANT-MAKING PROCESS

Once the foundation's board approves work on a key issue or in a particular geographic area, a program officer will explore in detail how foundation grants can have the greatest impact. The officer begins this process by consulting broadly with potential beneficiaries, practitioners, researchers, policy makers and others to identify ideas, institutions or projects worthy of support. During this process, the program officer looks for innovative approaches in the work that grantees might undertake, benchmarks to measure results and expected costs.

When the program officer has completed this process, he or she presents a proposed program of grant making in a memorandum reviewed by peers, a supervisor and at least two senior foundation officers. Once the proposed program is approved, the officer begins the process of soliciting and reviewing proposals and making specific grants, usually with a two-year budget.

Program staff regularly report to the board on how grantees are performing. Because of the foundation's long-term focus, the foundation frequently renews grants to organizations that demonstrate they are making progress toward their objectives.

In reviewing proposals, grant-making staff look for fresh thinking and innovative people and organizations that will be effective in fulfilling the foundation's mission. Ford supports pluralism and equal opportunity, both in its operations and in its grant making. In evaluating proposals, we look for prospective grantees that provide opportunities for women and under-represented groups.

Applicants typically learn within six weeks whether their proposals fall within the foundation's program interests and are being seriously considered for funding. If a proposal is being considered for a grant, Ford may conduct site visits and grant negotiations as well as administrative and legal reviews. This process usually takes three months, unless there are special circumstances.

Activities supported by grants must be charitable, educational or scientific, as defined under the appropriate provisions of the U.S. Internal Revenue Code and Treasury Regulations.

Ford makes grants to individuals, generally limited to research, training and travel directly related to our program interests. These grants are awarded through publicly announced competitions or on the basis of nominations from universities and other nonprofit institutions. We do not fund undergraduate scholarships or personal needs. The graduate fellowships we fund are generally provided through universities or other organizations, which select the recipients.

We look for fresh thinking, innovative and effective people and organizations.

TRACKING PROGRESS

During the course of a grant, the program officer typically meets with the grantee on site or at a foundation office and reviews the grantee's financial and narrative reports, which are also reviewed by a grants administrator and, where appropriate, by a lawyer. The grantee may be asked to attend meetings the foundation convenes to discuss current and future program strategy. Often, Ford hires evaluators to help review groups of grants or a single grantee's work to see whether the grant is contributing to progress toward the foundation's larger goals.

The foundation also monitors grants to ensure that the funds are used for approved and lawful purposes. We understand that the work the foundation and its grantees undertake together is difficult, that success often results from multiple efforts over a long period and that setbacks are likely. The monitoring process encourages candid exchanges about the work and whether the strategy should be adjusted to get better results over the long term.

HOW TO APPLY

Each year Ford receives about 40,000 proposals and makes about 2,000 grants. Requests range from a few thousand dollars to millions of dollars and are accepted in categories such as planning grants, project support, general support and endowments. We also consider requests for recoverable grants, loans and loan guarantees. There are no application deadlines. We consider requests throughout the year.

Grant applications are reviewed in the office located closest to the beneficiaries of the proposed work. (A list of our offices appears inside the back cover.) Grant recommendations originate in those offices, and grants of less than $200,000 may be approved locally. Grant recommendations for $200,000 or more are considered in New York, generally at biweekly meetings of staff and foundation officers.

We recommend that applicants first send us a brief letter of inquiry. The letter should include the purpose of the project; the problems and issues the project addresses; information about the organization; an estimated overall project budget; the period of time the funds would cover; and the qualifications of those engaged in the project.

In response, foundation staff members may ask for a formal proposal. Proposals include: a description of the proposed work and how it will be conducted; the goals of the work and benchmarks for measuring success; the names and biographies of those engaged in the project; the organization's current budget; a detailed project budget; the organization's current means of support and the status of its applications to other funding sources; and the organization's legal and tax status.

Requests in the United States should be e-mailed to:
office-secretary@fordfound.org

SHARING PRACTICAL WISDOM

Good grant making requires more than just being an expert in your community or field of interest. It's a set of tools and skills developed over many years, by many people, in many types of foundations. As a leader in the philanthropic sector, the Ford Foundation believes in the value of sharing and learning about such practices.

That's why, in 2001, the foundation launched GrantCraft, a source of practical wisdom for grant makers. Over 600 grant makers and grantees have contributed their expertise to create dozens of guides, videos, case studies and workshops on topics ranging from making program-related investments to grant making with a gender lens to learning how to occupy the role of grant maker in difficult situations.

GrantCraft is designed so that new ideas and techniques can be quickly shared.

GrantCraft is designed to encourage conversations and reflection on the craft of grant making among practitioners in and across foundations so that new ideas and techniques can be quickly shared throughout the field. It has become an important resource: As of January 2007, 165,000 documents have been downloaded from its Web site and over 2,000 grant makers have participated in its workshops. Asset Building & Community Development

THE GROWTH IN WEALTH over the last decade has transformed the global economy and broadened opportunity. Yet the new economy has also opened a gulf between those who have benefited from the boom and those who have not. Around the world, three billion people still live on less than $2 a day. In the United States, economic change has produced gains for some but job loss and uncertainty for others, with increasing numbers living below the poverty line. And we have seen household assets eroded or lost through catastrophic events, underscoring the economic fragility that keeps a quarter of American families living on the edge.

Promoting a more prosperous and inclusive society requires innovative solutions that broaden the successful participation of individuals and communities in social and economic life. While poverty is traditionally measured by a family's level of income, our work examines how people, especially women and minorities, can build wealth to insure their futures. In the United States, income among minorities averages roughly 55 percent that of whites, but wealth averages just 27 percent.

The foundation views wealth more broadly than savings, stock or property. We see it as a broad array of resources that enable people to exert control over their lives and participate in society in meaningful ways. This view of assets includes natural resources that sustain livelihoods in rural communities; marketable skills that enable people to improve their earning power; public assets such as community philanthropic endowments, civic organizations and public transportation; and the social assets that strengthen solidarity and collaborative problem solving in communities. Helping people build these individual and shared assets is the work of our program on Asset Building & Community Development.

With foundation support, for example, rural communities in Indonesia, Mexico, India and the United States have secured the right to manage local forests. As they earn income by harvesting wood and other products, they also act as stewards, protecting the forests for generations to come. We also continue to pioneer programs that make it possible for low-income people to buy homes and create savings. We work closely with the financial industry to understand how to make financial tools work in the lives of these individuals and families.

These are just a few examples of the work this program supports, all of it focused on transforming the way families and communities think about and plan for the future, expanding the choices they have to make use of resources around them and empowering them to build enduring assets, strong and inclusive communities and lasting economic security for themselves and their children.

Building participation, ownership and opportunity

2006 BUILDING ASSETS

The Peyton family now has an asset on which to build a more stable financial future—a new manufactured home they obtained with the help of Frontier Housing in northeastern Kentucky. In other rural areas, the foundation supports the creation of community land trusts that give families collective ownership of the property under their manufactured homes.

Asset Building & Community Development

Building participation, ownership and opportunity

1960 URBAN DEVELOPMENT

The foundation’s commitment to urban areas begins with the Gray Areas program, emphasizing investment in people, not just property.

1967 RENEWING COMMUNITIES

A grant to New York’s Bedford-Stuyvesant Restoration Corporation to revitalize the disadvantaged Brooklyn neighborhood signals the beginning of the foundation’s work in a new kind of community initiative: Community Development Corporations (CDCs). Formed by residents, small business owners, congregations and other local stakeholders, CDCs produce affordable housing, job training and social services. As of 2006, an estimated 4,600 CDCs are operating in the United States.

1976 EARLY MICROFINANCE

The foundation’s Bangladesh office makes a grant to the University of Chittagong’s Economics Department and Muhammad Yunus to help launch a project to show that landless people, primarily women, can use credit and repay loans. This microfinance demonstration evolves into the Grameen Bank, which by 2005 has outstanding loans of more than $300 million and cumulative disbursements of more than $4 billion. Yunus and the Grameen Bank are awarded the 2006 Nobel Peace Prize. Support is also given to the Bangladesh Rural Advancement Committee, which organizes village cooperatives and trains health, nutrition and family-planning workers.

1979 COMMUNITY REVITALIZATION

Ford helps establish Local Initiatives Support Corporation (LISC), a national organization dedicated to revitalizing low-income, distressed communities. Other urban and rural revitalization work involves the Enterprise Foundation and local development funds and banks that help develop leadership, business and housing in low-income areas.

1998 AFFORDABLE MORTGAGES

The foundation collaborates with the Center for Community Self-Help and Fannie Mae to develop the Self-Help Initiative, which makes available $2 billion in affordable mortgages for 35,000 minority and low-income home buyers nationwide. The $50 million grant marks one of the largest commitments to homeownership by a philanthropic institution.

2002 ASSET BUILDING

In an effort to help low-income people build assets through homeownership, Ford funds groups that are developing manufactured housing communities. One grantee, the New Hampshire Community Loan Fund, is helping owners of manufactured housing cooperatively own and manage the land on which their homes sit.

2005 A CITY’S LIVELIHOOD

Ford works in partnership with the New York City Department of Housing Preservation and Development, the Enterprise Foundation, LISC and a number of other foundations to create the New York City Affordable Housing Acquisition Fund, which would significantly increase the development of affordable housing in New York City.

Peace & Social Justice

OVER THE LAST 100 YEARS, societies around the globe have generated more wealth and technological advances than in any other century in history. They have also produced more violence and greater inequities than the world has known. The best hope for curtailing conflict, poverty and suffering lies with an engaged populace and public officials who are committed to the inherent dignity and worth of every person.

To realize this vision, people around the world are taking steps to strengthen the rule of law, build more democratic and accountable governments and create opportunities for civil society to thrive and fulfill the promise of human rights. Our program on Peace & Social Justice supports these inspiring people.

The process of globalization has brought new salience and urgency to the drive to create just societies. As countries around the world undergo continual demographic, economic and cultural change, they must wrestle with complex issues of difference and identity, religion and ethnicity, migration and citizenship. How can increasingly cosmopolitan societies govern themselves in ways that respect differences while fostering a genuine sense of the common respect for the human rights of all?

To address this and other complex challenges, the foundation supports efforts to improve government performance and accountability, as well as the development of legal systems that protect human rights and open societies. The emphasis on good governance includes grants to help advance effective multilateral mechanisms that encourage respect for international law; promote the peaceful resolution of disputes; and strengthen institutions that regulate global trade and finance. And we assist grantees who promote civic engagement in global governance.

Our work also seeks to expand space for people to organize and engage in ways that promote peace and social justice. We help grassroots groups, non-profits and membership organizations articulate common goals; strengthen their capacity and accountability; and build alliances with government and business. We also support philanthropy that broadens opportunities for those on the margins of political, economic and social life.

The ultimate goal of our work is to fulfill the rights that accrue to all people by virtue of their humanity. We believe that both individuals and governments share responsibility to secure the full range of human rights. In some contexts, the challenge is to advocate for laws that recognize and protect these rights. Where such safeguards are already in place, the foremost task is ensuring their full implementation. We support research, education and advocacy efforts that promote access to justice and protect the rights of all people, particularly the most vulnerable members of society.

PROMOTING RACIAL JUSTICE

The New Orleans Workers' Center for Racial Justice, launched in 2006 with Ford Foundation support, is helping those most affected by the Gulf Coast hurricanes find greater opportunities as they rebuild their lives. The center helps minority workers seek better wages, connects them with legal support and other services and even provides transportation so those still living in temporary housing—such as Wynaen Walker, whose home was destroyed by Hurricane Rita—can get to where jobs are located. This work reflects more than five decades of commitment to the cause of racial justice.

FIGHTING DISCRIMINATION

A number of grants support the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund. To create a broad civil rights network, the foundation supports the founding of new civil rights groups over the next two years, including the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, the National Council of La Raza, the Native American Rights Fund, the Puerto Rican Legal Defense and Education Fund, the National Committee Against Discrimination in Housing and the Legal Action Center. Ford also funds the Voter Education Project to support minority voters' rights and increase voter registration in the South. In 1992, Ford helps create the Asian American Justice Center.

MAKING THE CASE

The Women's Law Fund of Cleveland is founded to help litigate gender discrimination cases and paves the way for foundation support to organizations such as the National Women's Law Center, the Center for Reproductive Law & Policy and the ACLU's Women's Rights Project. A few years later, Ford provides assistance to the National Organization for Women's Legal Defense and Education Fund to promote gender equality and prohibit gender-based discrimination. In addition, Ford supports the International Women's Health Coalition's efforts to ensure that women gain access to reproductive health care services worldwide.

INTEGRATING NEWCOMERS

The foundation launches a program to strengthen the capacity of communities and key institutions to address refugee and migration issues globally, which continues today. Ford provides support to many national and state organizations and coalitions that help integrate newcomers into American society.

1987

EYES ON THE PRIZE

The landmark civil rights documentary series, "Eyes on the Prize: America's Civil Rights Years (1954-1965)," funded in part by the foundation, airs on public television. The foundation supports the production of an eight-part sequel, entitled "Eyes on the Prize II: America at the Racial Crossroads (1965-1985)," which portrays the largely unrecorded years of the civil rights movement. This sequel is broadcast in 1990.

THE DREAM FUND

Building on decades of support from former presidents McGeorge Bundy and Franklin Thomas, Ford awards a series of grants for research and dialogue about affirmative action, which is followed a few years later with support for the design and management of the Fulfilling the Dream Fund, a donors' collaborative to fund affirmative action-related activities.

Knowledge, Creativity & Freedom

KNOWLEDGE AND CREATIVITY are central to the richness of people's lives and the progress of societies. As change in our societies becomes more constant and ideas, technologies and people move more rapidly within and among countries, there is a profound desire to understand the world better, to connect more deeply with others, to come to terms with multiple and conflicting values and to find more meaningful ways to participate fully as citizens.

This helps explain why the demand for education and knowledge, creative expression and freedom of conscience has never been greater. It also helps explain why the demand for access to media continues to grow throughout the world. These demands are growing in all societies, whether long-standing democracies or nations in transition. Supporting this search for meaning and understanding in a fluid, interdependent yet deeply unequal world is the work of our program on Knowledge, Creativity & Freedom.

KC&F aims to build knowledge, encourage creativity and secure greater freedom of expression for all people, especially the marginalized. We do this through grants to institutions working in the fields of education and scholarship; religion; media, arts and culture; and human sexuality. We also fund innovative projects that cut across a number of these fields.

We invest in education to increase access of disadvantaged students to higher education; improve the performance of public school systems; and promote academic institutions that can provide scholars the opportunity to consider and address complex social issues.

In the arts, we seek to increase opportunities for cultural and artistic expression; expand venues that can sustain this work; and improve the livelihoods of artists.

The research we support in human sexuality builds knowledge and deepens public understanding of sexual well-being and reproductive health that helps to inform public debate and policy.

We also fund efforts to examine the role of religion in shaping social values and how religious practices and texts can contribute in positive ways to creating open and pluralistic societies.

Finally, we promote the development of promising new public-service media around the world that can provide its audiences with greater diversity in coverage and perspectives.

The foundation works to support the perpetual human search for knowledge, meaning and understanding. This work recognizes that traditions worldwide possess cultural and intellectual resources that enlarge the vision of what it means to be human and offer wisdom that elevates what people believe they can achieve.

BUILDING UNDERSTANDING

Thousands of volumes of ancient manuscripts now being preserved in Timbuktu, Mali, deepen our knowledge of the vibrant intellectual and cultural heritage of West Africa. With Ford support, long-term efforts to research, translate and digitize these scholarly works are under way. Throughout its history, the foundation has supported those working to build understanding and preserve the diversity of human wisdom and knowledge.

Promoting freedom of expression, learning and creative citizenship

OVERTURE TO ORCHESTRAS

In what was then the “largest single action in the history of organized philanthropic support of the arts,” the foundation gives $85 million for orchestras throughout the United States. This initiative leads to the National Arts Stabilization program, which provides incentives for performing arts groups to build long-term economic stability. Some 30 years later, the foundation introduces the New Directions/New Donors program to further strengthen cultural organizations nationwide.

NATIVE AMERICAN ARTS AND CULTURES

Building on its history of commitment to Native American arts and cultures, Ford begins its support of the newly established National Museum of the American Indian at the Smithsonian Institution and later funds the development of the Museum’s Cultural Resource Center in Maryland and elsewhere. This is part of a larger effort to help cultural institutions serve their communities and uphold a vibrant cultural heritage.

CULTURAL RESOURCES

With a demand by artists and the public for regular opportunities to create, present and experience new art, the foundation is instrumental in the creation of key cultural spaces around the world. In Egypt, grants help establish the Townhouse Gallery, Makan and the Garage; in Lebanon, Ashkal Alwan’s cultural forum; in the Palestinian territories, Al Maamal and the Sakakini Center; and in Kenya, the Godown Arts Center. These new venues and forums achieve great success as spaces for training, creativity and experimentation.

CONTEMPORARY DANCE

Ford supports the establishment of the Dance Theatres Network in Russia to stage an annual festival of modern dance, where fledgling companies in Moscow and the Russian provinces can present their works-in-progress. With continuing support from Ford, which remains the only national foundation in Russia supporting contemporary arts, the organization establishes itself as a national and international cultural resource enabling modern dance to flourish.

ADVANCING PUBLIC MEDIA

Building upon the foundation’s long history of work in public media, $50 million is given to support innovative public-service media organizations to improve programming and make use of emerging technologies to serve new audiences in a variety of formats.

ARTS IN INDONESIA

The foundation supports Indonesia’s efforts to transform the place of arts in education and public dialogue. New arts curricula are introduced in secondary schools in three cities; programs are launched to build appreciation for the country’s traditional and nontraditional art forms, including indigenous art; and after-school programs give young people the opportunity to engage in the performing arts.

Other Grant Actions

These grants support diverse and robust work that experiments with different models and, at times, crosses over the foundation's three programs in the United States and overseas.

FOUNDATIONWIDE ACTIONS are those which are broader than any one program area, encompassing elements of all our work. For example, grants to strengthen governance and practices within the nonprofit sector, which are included here.

PROGRAM-RELATED INVESTMENTS (PRIs) are loans or equity investments supporting projects that both produce a social good and generate revenue. Since 1968, the foundation has committed some $400 million for such investments. PRIs for affordable housing, student loans and local businesses are but a few examples.

GOOD NEIGHBOR GRANTS promote the well-being of the communities that surround the foundation's headquarters in New York City, as well as the 12 other cities where we are based. The program strengthens ties to local organizations in the neighborhoods surrounding our local offices. This year, for example, we supported New York-based StoryCorps' efforts to celebrate our nation's history by recording people's personal stories. A soundproof booth was set up in Grand Central Terminal, and "Mobilebooths" have traveled the country.

GLOBAL INITIATIVE ON HIV/AIDS launched in 2006 with a $45 million commitment to build global support for its local efforts to fight HIV/AIDS. The foundation's grantees address the social, political and cultural factors that shape how the disease is spread and that stand in the way of adequate prevention and treatment. The initiative extends the impact of this work by bringing the knowledge and experience of local grantees to global dialogue and policy-making forums.

Strengthening the Fight Against HIV/AIDS

In 2006, the Ford Foundation launched the Global Initiative on HIV/AIDS. This $45 million, five-year program helps ensure that new global gains in medical and technological breakthroughs are matched by an equally significant focus on the social, political and cultural factors of the disease and its control. The initiative enables Ford to build on its history of local funding for HIV/AIDS programs by directing additional resources to global efforts that strengthen leadership by building the skills of women and other groups most affected by the disease; ensuring equal commitment to strengthening HIV prevention, support and treatment choices; encouraging accountability among governments, community leaders and funders; and supporting partnerships by finding new ways for businesses, governments and activists to work together.

2006 SUPPORT FOR WOMEN WITH HIV/AIDS

The Women's Collective provides care and support for women of all different backgrounds who are living with HIV/AIDS. Based in Washington, D.C., this Ford grantee is the only one of its kind for the region: an HIV/AIDS service organization created for, and by, women living with the disease. In the United States, HIV affects African-American men at a rate seven times that of white men, but black women are 20 times more likely to contract HIV than white women.

MOBILIZING SUPPORT

Ford begins its work in the field, helping establish key organizations that address policy issues related to AIDS; share information about legal, ethical and public policy issues with state and local government officials; develop local education and care programs in the United States; and help indigenous organizations mobilize their support.

LOCAL ACTIONS

Foundation assists grassroots AIDS support groups in Rio de Janeiro and São Paulo, to develop counseling and home-visit care programs for people afflicted with the disease and for their families. In the United States, Ford helps create the National-Community AIDS Partnership, which develops innovative community-based education and care strategies.

A CONTINENT CONSIDERED

Ford supports research and community education programs in Africa to help develop an appropriate response to both sexually transmitted diseases and AIDS. Research results are used for selected family-planning clinics. In addition, Ford funds the Society for Women Against AIDS in Africa to stimulate greater public attention to the plight of African women with AIDS.

PREVENTIVE MEASURES

In an effort to prevent the spread of HIV and other sexually transmitted diseases, Ford grantee SANGRAM, an NGO based in Mumbai, India, helps sex workers find a strategy to make their clients use condoms. With the use of peer education to coordinate some 5,000 workers in six districts of Maharashtra, a code of practice is eventually established, requiring that condoms always be used.

INCREASED AWARENESS

Ford grantee Grupo Pela Vidda (Group for Life) develops into a leading NGO in the field of HIV/AIDS. It encourages a new attitude toward the disease in Brazil through innovative educational and social activities and by making available legal assistance to people who are infected. Grupo also creates a women's division to increase awareness that AIDS is not only a male disease and to relate it to other reproductive health issues.

AN INFORMED RESPONSE

Ford supports the Panos Institute's efforts to reduce misinformed and sensationalized media reporting on AIDS. Panos provides technical assistance to developing-country journalists working in 12 languages to ensure informed press coverage. The foundation also funds an AIDS awareness and media campaign as well as other efforts to encourage a stronger national response to HIV/AIDS in India and to further involve the Indian government and philanthropic community in prevention and care.

EXTENDING THE REACH

Ford supports public and private communications efforts regarding the growing risk of HIV/AIDS, hoping to reach those outside mainstream information channels, including poor women and members of minority groups. The foundation is also extending its efforts to develop policies and programs in China, India, Egypt, Chile and Peru, where the AIDS epidemic is just beginning to receive attention.

A GLOBAL NETWORK

A grant to the Tides Foundation enables people living with HIV from around the world to constitute a global network, which funds and supports local access to comprehensive treatment options and practices for HIV-positive people. Areas represented include Africa, Asia, Latin America, the Caribbean, North America, Europe, Australia and Pacific Island Nations.

Governance

The trustees hail from four continents and are highly respected for their work in scholarship, business, law, government and nonprofit management.

THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Ford's trustees set policies relating to grant making, geographic focus, spending, investment, management, governance and professional standards, and oversee internal and independent audits. They set the compensation and review the performance of the president and all foundation officers. The board of trustees is currently composed of 14 members, including the president. Nominated by a trustee committee and appointed by the full board, trustees generally serve two six-year terms. The board, board committees and individual trustees are evaluated on an annual basis. Ford trustees bring a vast range of knowledge and experience to the task of governing the foundation. They hail from four continents and have extensive experience in the worlds of scholarship, business, law, government and nonprofit management.

THE PRESIDENT

The trustees select the president, who implements board policies and oversees Ford's programs and operations on a day-to-day basis. The trustees and the president share the responsibility of representing the foundation in the public sphere along with other senior staff. The president continually re-examines Ford's work, looking for opportunities to hone our strategies and improve our effectiveness. The president meets with people around the world to discuss the issues the foundation works on to deepen the foundation's grasp of different perspectives on how to solve problems. In addition to overseeing the foundation's operations, the president works to communicate what Ford has learned to a broad array of audiences and also strives to strengthen the philanthropic sector's performance, legal compliance and transparency.

THE BOARD'S OVERSIGHT OF GRANT MAKING

The board of trustees determines the substantive areas and geographic focus of the foundation's grant making. Within the budget approved by the board, the foundation makes about 2,000 grants throughout the year. The board has delegated authority for approving these grants to the president and senior staff. However, all trustees serve on one of the board's three program committees that help design program strategy. Membership on those committees rotates so that trustees serving 12 years become steeped in the work of Ford's three program areas and contribute to their development and assessment. The trustees review approved grants at their regular board meetings, which take place three times a year. At those meetings, and during annual board visits to grantees worldwide, trustees meet grant recipients and learn about their work.

BOARD COMMITTEES

A five-person executive committee, comprising the board chair, the president and three trustees, works with the foundation’s executive officers and acts for the board between board meetings. Trustee committees dedicated to management and governance, audits and compensation, investment, trustee nominations, transactions and proxy votes meet regularly and guide foundation activities throughout the year.

The foundation’s Web site makes available to the public documents that describe Ford’s governance practices. The foundation’s bylaws and articles of incorporation and the board’s committee charters and code of ethics are among the documents posted at www.fordfound.org.

TRUSTEE INDEPENDENCE

The Ford Foundation places high value on the independence of its board members; it requires that a majority of its trustees be independent, that all trustees serving on the audit and membership (nominating) committees be independent and that trustees on the audit committee satisfy additional standards of independence. When the staff proposes that the foundation fund an organization with which a trustee is affiliated as an employee, officer or trustee, that grant must be reviewed and approved by the audit committee. The grant action document, which is reviewed and approved by management before submission to the audit committee, discloses the nature of the trustee affiliation and confirms that the trustee played no role in the initiation or negotiation of the grant.

Our History

IN 2006 THE FORD FOUNDATION CELEBRATED 70 years of delivering on a promise to advance human welfare. That promise is embedded in our founding charter and has been reaffirmed by the foundation’s trustees throughout our history. We are delighted to offer a view into that history in this report.

The Ford Foundation was established by Edsel Ford in 1936 with an initial gift of $25,000. During its early years, the foundation operated in Michigan under the leadership of the Ford family. Since its charter stated that its resources should be used “all for the public welfare,” the foundation made grants to many different kinds of organizations. After the deaths of Edsel Ford in 1943 and Henry Ford in 1947, their bequests of Ford Motor Company stock significantly expanded the foundation’s holdings and income available for grant making.

This led Henry Ford II, Edsel’s son and then-president of the foundation, to appoint H. Rowan Gaither, a respected San Francisco attorney, to lead a seven-member panel of experts to chart a new course for the future. The panel’s recommendations were unanimously approved in 1950 by the foundation’s trustees. The report recommended that the foundation become a national and international philanthropy dedicated to the advancement of human welfare. Perhaps most significant, the panel urged the foundation to declare its intention to focus on solving humankind’s most pressing problems, whatever they might be, rather than to work in any particular field, which was the more traditional and accepted approach for foundations.

The report recommended support for activities worldwide that:

- Promise significant contributions to world peace and the establishment of a world order of law and justice;
- Secure greater allegiance to the basic principles of freedom and democracy in the solution of the insistent problems of an ever-changing society;
- Advance the economic well-being of people everywhere and improve economic institutions for the better realization of democratic goals;
- Strengthen, expand and improve educational facilities and methods to enable individuals to more fully realize their intellectual, civic and spiritual potential; to promote greater equality of educational opportunity; and to conserve and increase knowledge and enrich our culture; and

- Through scientific work, increase knowledge of factors that influence or determine human conduct and extend such knowledge for the maximum benefit of individuals and society.

He sought to create an institution of the highest order to pursue innovative solutions to the problems of mankind.

The report also recommended that the foundation operate under the policy guidance of the trustees, with the president and staff officers having a high degree of discretion and the flexibility necessary to respond to unforeseen opportunities. In 1953, under the direction of Henry II, the trustees took a further step to fulfill the foundation’s new national and global mission by locating in New York.

The foundation leased space in the city until 1967, when construction of a new headquarters building was completed. Diversification of the foundation’s portfolio was discussed as early as 1949, and divestment of Ford Motor Company stock occurred between 1955 and 1974.

Henry II led the foundation from 1943 to 1976, variously as president, chair and member of the board of trustees. He steered its transformation from a local Detroit foundation to a national and international organization. In nearly every major decision, he sought to create an institution of the highest order to pursue innovative solutions to the problems of humankind. Three Ford family members served as foundation trustees at different times, with Henry Ford II serving for more than 30 years, until his resignation in 1976.

Today, the foundation remains a national and international philanthropy committed to advancing human welfare. Headquartered in New York, the foundation makes grants in all 50 states and, through 12 regional offices around the world, supports programs in more than 50 countries. Our trustees are drawn from the United States, Latin America, Africa and Asia and bring a wealth of experience in business, government, higher education and the civic sector with a diversity of approaches and continuity of purposes. Reflecting our charter and the Gaither Committee report, the foundation’s programs today continue to serve the public welfare by strengthening democratic values, reducing poverty and injustice, promoting international cooperation and advancing human achievement.

Introduction to Financial Statements

THE FOUNDATION'S BUDGET AND SPENDING POLICIES are designed so that the foundation will continue to address major societal issues worldwide for many years to come. Most of the problems the foundation addresses require long-term attention, steady engagement and periodic adjustments to correct what is not working. The foundation also gains special expertise by sticking with problems over time. In order to pursue multiyear programs and strategies, the foundation tries to invest and budget in ways that produce relatively smooth spending patterns, while preserving the value of the investment portfolio.

Ford's board of trustees approves program and operational budgets on a two-year basis, appropriating one year's funding at a time. This enables program, administrative and investment staff to plan ahead with a reasonable Policies are designed so the foundation will continue to address major societal issues for years to come.

degree of certainty. The size of the two-year budget takes into account three considerations: the need to satisfy the U. S. federal payout requirement (the obligation to disburse annually about 5 percent of the average value of the investment portfolio); the objective of preserving the value of the endowment for long-term charitable funding; and program needs and opportunities. The program approval totals shown on the chart opposite reflect the grants and program-related investments made in all Ford offices during the last fiscal year. Funds are drawn on allocations made at the outset of the budget period, as well as from the general reserve, an annual set-aside of between 10 and 20 percent of the budget. This reserve is controlled by the trustees. It is used for grants when markets are steady or rising but held (in whole or part) and not used in declining markets.

The general reserve has been the source of very large grants that staff recommend within their program areas but cannot be accommodated within regular budget allocations. Occasionally, when an opportunity is particularly compelling, the trustees have gone beyond the general reserve and drawn even more funds from the investment portfolio to fund especially large and appealing initiatives.

The level of program spending by the foundation is related to the value of the endowment. CHART 1 shows this relationship starting in 1970.

Since the budget is based on several considerations, the foundation does not necessarily limit its spending to the amount needed to meet the payout requirement. In fact, as CHART 2 shows, the foundation generally spends more than required. In the last six years, the foundation's payout has averaged 6.1 percent.

Since the early 1970's it has been the policy of the foundation to try to preserve the real (inflation-adjusted) value of the endowment. The difficulty of achieving this—particularly if spending exceeds the payout requirement on a regular basis—is reflected in CHART 3. This chart shows the value of the endowment since 1970 in both real and nominal terms. As indicated, even with the bull market of the 1980's and 1990's, the foundation has not made up for the erosion of the investment portfolio in the 1970's. Over the 37-year period covered by the chart, the foundation disbursed $12.8 billion.

INVESTMENTS

The foundation's investment portfolio was valued at $12.1 billion at the end of fiscal 2006, versus $11.4 billion at the close of fiscal 2005. The portfolio rate of return was 11.7 percent for the fiscal year, 13.6 percent annualized for the three-year period and 10.6 percent annualized for the 10-year period. The foundation's primary investment objective is to generate an inflation-adjusted return in excess of our mandated minimum 5 percent payout requirement. We have achieved that objective over the long term.

International equity markets again had outstanding returns and the foundation's international managers gained 21.6 percent, ahead of the MSCI EAFE Index return of 19.2 percent. U.S. equities returned 10.8 percent, the same as the benchmark, the S&P 500 Index. Private equity returns were 15.2 percent as buyout firms generated gains by selling portfolio companies. Fixed income markets were challenged by the continuation of Federal Reserve interest rate increases at the short end of the yield curve. The foundation's fixed income portfolio gained 3.4 percent.

The asset allocation of the foundation's portfolio shifted toward equities as development in the global economy and monetary policy indicated better opportunities in equities than in fixed income markets.

INCOME AND EXPENDITURES

Total realized income, including capital gains, amounted to $1.089 billion in fiscal year 2006, compared with $1.152 billion in fiscal 2005. Dividends and interest income totaled $337 million, or $26 million above fiscal 2005. Total program activities (primarily grants to organizations and individuals, direct charitable activities and program support) were $589 million, representing an increase of $17 million over the previous year. General management expenditures were $30 million, representing $3.3 million over the previous year. Expenses incurred in the production of income were $36 million, a $4.6 million increase over fiscal year 2005.

PROGRAM-RELATED INVESTMENTS (PRIs)

Each year the foundation invests a portion of its endowment in projects that advance philanthropic purposes in various areas of the foundation's interest. (See list, page 125.) The trustees have earmarked up to $200 million of the corpus for these investments. The investments are in the form of debt or equity financing or loan guarantees. As of September 30, 2006, the foundation had $132.2 million in investments and $30.3 million in funding commitments.

During the fiscal year, new PRI loan commitments of $15.5 million were made and $18.7 million were disbursed. Principal repayments of $14.4 million were received. The following table summarizes the PRI program for fiscal years 2006 and 2005.

FEDERAL REQUIREMENTS

The Internal Revenue Code imposes an excise tax on private foundations equal to 2 percent of net investment income, which is defined as interest, dividends and net realized gains less operating and capital losses on partnership investments and expenses incurred in the production of income. The tax is reduced to 1 percent for foundations that meet certain distribution requirements. For fiscal year 2006, the tax is estimated to be $19 million, excluding the deferred portion of excise taxes resulting from unrealized appreciation/depreciation on investments. Since fiscal 1971 the foundation has incurred federal excise taxes of $277 million.

The Internal Revenue Code also requires private foundations annually to disburse approximately 5 percent of the market value of investment assets, less the federal excise tax. The payout requirement may be satisfied by payments for grants, program-related investments, direct conduct of charitable activities and certain administrative expenses. The foundation had qualifying distributions of $642 million in fiscal 2006, exceeding the federally mandated payout requirement by $64 million. During the past five years, the foundation has made $3.1 billion in qualifying distributions, exceeding the federally mandated payout requirement by $402 million.

Report of Independent Auditors

TO THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE FORD FOUNDATION:

In our opinion, the accompanying statements of financial position and the related statements of activities and cash flows present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Ford Foundation at September 30, 2006 and 2005, and the changes in its net assets and its cash flows for the years then ended in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Ford Foundation's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits. We conducted our audits of these statements in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements, assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management and evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

Notes to Financial Statements

September 30, 2006

Note 1. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

The financial statements of The Ford Foundation (the Foundation) are prepared on the accrual basis which is in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. The significant accounting policies followed are set forth below:

INVESTMENTS Equity and fixed income investments are generally valued based upon the final sales price as quoted on major exchanges. However, certain fixed income securities are valued based upon yields or prices of securities of comparable quality, coupon, maturity and type as well as indications as to values from brokers and dealers. Short-term investments generally represent securities with maturity of 1 year or less and are valued at amortized cost. Limited marketability investments, representing amounts in venture capital and equity partnerships, are valued at the quoted market price for securities for which market quotations are readily available or an estimate of value (fair value) as determined in good faith by the general partner. Significant changes affecting the values of these limited marketability investments that occur between the time net asset values are last communicated by the general partner and the close of the Foundation's fiscal year are reflected in the fair value recorded in the financial statements.

Transactions are recorded on a trade date basis. Realized and unrealized gains or losses on investments are determined by comparison of specific costs of acquisition (identified lot basis) to proceeds at the time of disposal, or market values at the last day of the fiscal year, respectively, and include the effects of currency translation with respect to transactions and holdings of foreign securities. Dividends and interest are recognized when earned.

CASH Consists of cash on hand and operating bank deposits.

PROGRAM-RELATED INVESTMENTS The Foundation invests in projects that advance philanthropic purposes. These program-related investments are mainly loans outstanding for up to 10 years bearing interest at 1%. These loans are treated as qualifying distributions for tax reporting purposes. Loans are monitored to determine net realizable value based on an evaluation of recoverability that utilizes experience and may reflect periodic adjustments to terms as deemed appropriate.

FIXED ASSETS Land, buildings, furniture, equipment and leasehold improvements owned by the Foundation are recorded at cost. Depreciation is charged using the straight-line method based on estimated useful lives of the particular assets generally estimated as follows: buildings, principally 50 years, furniture and equipment 3 to 15 years, and leasehold improvements over the lesser of the term of the lease or the life of the asset.

EXPENDITURES AND APPROPRIATIONS Grant expenditures are considered incurred at the time of approval. Uncommitted appropriations that have been approved by the Board of Trustees are included in appropriated unrestricted net assets.

TAXES The Foundation qualifies as a tax-exempt organization under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code and, accordingly, is not subject to federal income taxes. However, the Foundation is subject to a federal excise tax.

The Foundation follows the policy of providing for federal excise taxes on net appreciation (both realized and unrealized) on investments. The deferred provision for federal excise tax represents taxes provided on net unrealized appreciation (depreciation) on investments.

RISKS AND UNCERTAINTIES The Foundation uses estimates in preparing the financial statements which require management to make estimates and assumptions. These affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities at the date of the Statement of Financial Position and the reported amounts of income and expenditures during the reporting period. Actual results may differ from these estimates. The most significant estimates and assumptions relate to valuation of limited marketable securities, allowances for possible losses on program-related investments and employee benefit plans.

ACCOUNTING FOR DERIVATIVE INSTRUMENTS AND HEDGING

ACTIVITIES The Foundation records all derivative instruments, in accordance with Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 133 “Accounting for Derivative Investments and Hedging Activities” at fair value. The fair value adjustment is recorded directly to the invested asset and recognized as an unrealized gain or loss in the statements of activities.

NEW FASB INTERPRETATION The Foundation adopted FASB Interpretation No. 47, “Accounting for Conditional Asset Retirement Obligation” (FIN 47) effective September 30, 2006. FIN 47 provides clarification with respect to the timing of liability recognition for legal obligations to perform asset retirement activity when the timing and/or method of settlement of the obligation are conditional on a future event. Upon adoption of FIN 47, on September 30, 2006, the Foundation recognized a non-cash cumulative effect charge of $4.987 million associated with the estimated cost of removal and disposal of known asbestos in the Foundation’s headquarters building. Had the Foundation adopted FIN 47 prior to fiscal year 2006, the change in net assets for the fiscal years ending September 30, 2006 and 2005 would not have changed materially.

	$12,055,383	$10,131,891	$11,424,291	$9,723,929

The Foundation purchases and sells forward currency contracts whereby the Foundation agrees to exchange one currency for another on an agreed-upon date at an agreed-upon exchange rate to minimize the exposure of certain of its investments to adverse fluctuations in currency markets. As of September 30, 2006 and 2005, the Foundation had foreign currency contracts with notional amounts totaling $170.7 million and $355.8 million, respectively. Such contracts involve, to varying degrees, risks of loss from the possible inability of counterparties to meet the terms of their contracts. Changes in the value of forward currency contracts are recognized as unrealized gains or losses until such contracts are closed.

Note 3. FIXED ASSETS At September 30, fixed assets are comprised of:

	2006	2005 in thousands
Land	$ 4,473	$ 4,467
Buildings, net of accumulated depreciation of $25,308 in 2006 and $24,517 in 2005	10,433	9,915

	$30,359	$31,504

Note 4. PROVISION FOR FEDERAL EXCISE TAX

The Internal Revenue Code imposes an excise tax on private foundations equal to 2 percent of net investment income, which is defined as interest, dividends and net realized gains less operating and capital losses on partnership investments and expenses incurred in the production of income. The tax is reduced to 1 percent for foundations that meet certain distribution requirements. The provision for federal excise tax based on a 2 percent rate in fiscal years 2006 and 2005 consists of a current provision on net investment income and a deferred provision on current net unrealized gains on investments.

The amount of excise taxes paid were $21.3 million and $21.6 million in fiscal years 2006 and 2005, respectively.

Note 5. RETIREMENT PLANS

The Foundation’s defined benefit pension plans and the defined contribution plans cover substantially all New York appointed employees (staff who are locally appointed by overseas offices are covered by other retirement arrangements). Pension benefits generally depend upon age, length of service and salary level. The Foundation also provides retirees with at least five years of service and who are at least age 55 with nonpension other postretirement benefits which include medical, dental and life insurance. The defined benefit pension plans are annually funded in accordance with the minimum funding requirements of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act. The nonpension other postretirement benefits are not funded by the Foundation.

For measurement purposes, a health care cost trend rate of 7% and 8% was used to measure the other postretirement benefit obligation at September 30, 2006 and 2005, respectively. The health care cost trend rate is assumed to be 6% in fiscal year 2007 and to decrease ratably to 5% by the fiscal year 2008 and thereafter. A 1% point change in assumed health care cost trend rates would have the following effects:

	1% INCREASE	1% DECREASE
Effect on total of service and interest cost components	$455,000	$370,000
Effect on other postretirement benefit obligation	3,374,000	2,813,000

The expense recorded by the Foundation related to contributions to the defined contribution plan aggregated $5,135,000 and $5,053,000 for the years ended September 30, 2006 and 2005, respectively.

The Foundation's weighted-average asset allocations at September 30 by asset category are as follows:

	PENSION BENEFITS
	2006	2005
TIAA-CREF Group Annuity Contract	43.9%	48.8%
CREF Stock Variable Annuity	41.8%	38.0%
CREF Inflation-Linked Bond Variable Annuity	6.2%	6.1%
TIAA Real Estate Variable Annuity	8.1%	7.1%
	100.0%	100.0%

The investment strategy is to manage investment risk through prudent asset allocation that will produce a rate of return commensurate with the plans' obligations. The Foundation expects to continue the investment target allocations as noted above in fiscal year 2007. The Foundation's overall expected long-term rate of return on plan assets is based upon historical long-term returns of the investment performance adjusted to reflect expectations of future long-term returns by asset class. The Foundation expects to have a contribution requirement to the pension plans in fiscal year 2007 of $246,000.

Estimated future benefit payments, which reflect expected future service, as appropriate, are expected to be paid as follows:

Note 6. CONTINGENCIES, COMMITMENTS AND GUARANTEES

The Foundation is involved in several legal actions. The Foundation believes it has defenses for all such claims, believes the claims are substantially without merit, and is vigorously defending the actions. In the opinion of management, the final disposition of these matters will not have a material effect on the Foundation's financial position.

As part of its program-related investment activities, the Foundation is committed to provide $30.3 million of loans to not-for-profit organizations once certain conditions are met. Further, as part of its investment management activity, the Foundation is committed to additional funding of $1.12 billion in private equity and other investment commitments.

The Ford Foundation is a resource for innovative people and institutions worldwide.

Our goals are to:

STRENGTHEN DEMOCRATIC VALUES
REDUCE POVERTY AND INJUSTICE
PROMOTE INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION AND ADVANCE HUMAN ACHIEVEMENT

This has been our purpose for more than half a century.

A fundamental challenge facing every society is to create political, economic and social systems that promote peace, human welfare and the sustainability of the environment on which life depends. We believe that the best way to meet this challenge is to encourage initiatives by those living and working closest to where problems are located; to promote collaboration among the nonprofit, government and business sectors; and to ensure participation by men and women from diverse communities and at all levels of society. In our experience, such activities help build common understanding, enhance excellence, enable people to improve their lives and reinforce their commitment to society.

The Ford Foundation is one source of support for these activities. We work mainly by making grants or loans that build knowledge and strengthen organizations and networks. Since our financial resources are modest in comparison to societal needs, we focus on a limited number of problem areas and program strategies within our broad goals.

Founded in 1936, the foundation operated as a local philanthropy in the state of Michigan until 1950, when it expanded to become a national and international foundation.

Since its inception it has been an independent, nonprofit, nongovernmental organization. It has provided more than $13 billion for grants, projects and loans. These funds derive from an investment portfolio that began with gifts and bequests of Ford Motor Company stock by Henry and Edsel Ford. The foundation no longer owns Ford Motor Company stock, and its diversified portfolio is managed to provide a perpetual source of support for the foundation's programs and operations.

The trustees of the foundation set policy and delegate authority to the president and senior staff for the foundation's grant making and operations. Program officers in the United States, Africa, the Middle East, Asia, Latin America and Russia explore opportunities to pursue the foundation's goals, formulate strategies and recommend proposals for funding.
